

April 12, 1923.

Dear Prof. Munz:

All of us at times put off for the morrow that which should be done today, so I have neglected to thank you for the promptness with which you had the application papers sent to me, so I take occasion to do it now. I have sent them to my daughter to be properly filled out, and they should already be back at Pomona, or at least will be there in the near future, for of course it takes some little time for a letter to cross and recross the continent. Also did I fail to get around to look up in my duplicates, the specimens which I said that I would send to you, so I am putting them in the mail today, Solidago occidentalis, Gnaphalium bicolor and Monardella hypoleuca. I am also putting in three specimens which I am going to ask you to comment on, the first being the specimen which I had labelled Horkelia puberula, but which you said you thought was something else. I have recently gotten some more specimens, but I confess that I have not been able to make anything else out of it, so would be glad of your opinion. The flowers are of course white.

The second is a specimen that I have labelled Plantago (Nutt.) heterophylla, as it seemed to be nearest to that, though I do not find any record of that species occurring in this section. It was rather common around the streets of Elsinore last season, though I have not chanced to run across it this year, perhaps due to the dryness of the season.

The third is what I have taken to be Chamaesyce ocellata. I ran across Parietaria debilis the other day, the first time that I have seen it.

Sincerely,
